

Our Work

Students for Sensible Drug Policy is a grassroots network of thousands of students and young people across the globe advocating for sensible drug policies in their communities, on their campuses, and at the state and national levels. Supported by a small team based in Washington, D.C. USA and Vienna, Austria, our members are fighting for drug policies based in science, public health, compassion, reason, and justice.

While the global War on Drugs has been waged in the name of protecting young people and ending drug misuse, its harmful policies have interrupted too many of their lives through imprisonment, overdose, inadequate drug education, and exposure to the violence inherent in an underground market -- costs paid inordinately by people and communities of color. Students for Sensible Drug Policy has a better answer: we're building the movement for justice, safety, and education to answer the problems of drug misuse. With groundbreaking empowerment tools, a network of advocates across the US and the globe, and no sense of the impossible, we're taking on the toughest problems with revolutionary approaches. Students for Sensible Drug Policy is unique in that while we are dismantling the War on Drugs and replacing it with sensible drug policies, we are building future leaders. A gift to SSDP is an investment in a future where human rights, justice, compassion, and science fuel our leaders and our policies.

Corporate Giving Levels

Students for Sensible Drug Policy's corporate sponsors pledge at one of the four following levels on a monthly or annual basis. These unrestricted funds support Students for Sensible Drug Policy's day-to-day operations, staff and team, and infrastructure to continue to train, educate, and mobilize our chapters and youth members. Sensible Society members are committed to helping SSDP build a more sensible and sustainable future.
